

Perspectives on Food and Water Security

ENVS 411

Fall 2015

Nick Dreher and Dan Shtob

CRN: 12208 4 Credits

MW 12:00 – 1:50 PM

Human interaction with the natural environment is often experienced through our relationship to food and water. Focusing on diverse situations including drought, this course will focus on how environmental, economic, political, and social factors combine to promote or inhibit adequate access to appropriate food and water resources. Join us as we explore these issues using ideas, perspectives, and case studies developed around the world.